Part I: Introduction

Chapter 1. Frequently Asked Questions

Downl

What kind of person does it take to run an online store?

How much will it cost to get my store up and running?

What equipment and software do I need?

Can I run my store out of my house or apartment or should I find an office?

How many employees do I need? Can I do it myself?

How much money can I make?

What are some advantages and disadvantages to running an online store?

How much content do I need to generate?

Are there any specific laws and regulations covering online stores?

How do I find a good lawyer?

What sells best on the Web? What should I sell?

Once I've started selling things, how do I get the products to the customers?

Can I make my store virtual?

Is there anything I can sell and distribute directly over the Web?

Should I consider combining my traditional store with an online store?

What are some of the most successful online stores?

What are online auctions?

What's the difference between simply selling something online and running an online store?

Isn't online retailing really competitive? Will I be able to succeed?

Can I just open my store and let the orders roll in?

What is spam? Is it a good thing?

I don't know much about computers, let alone HTML code. What should I learn before opening my online store?

Should I hire someone to develop my site, or should I do it myself?

Are there any "Shop in a Box" products available?

What are Net.Commerce, Open Market Transact, and Microsoft Site Server?

What are online malls and how do they work?

I hear there is a risk involved in accepting credit card orders. Should I accept them?

What other kinds of security risks do I have to worry about?

What are SET, SSL, e-cash, and TRUSTe?

I've heard a lot about VeriSign. Who are they?

Are there any good references to help online store proprietors?

All right, I'm going to start an online store. Where do I start?
